To the extent that we transfer data outside of Switzerland, the EU, or the EEA, we have indicated this accordingly below. The reference to a legal basis under the GDPR shall, where applicable, also serve as a reference to the justification required under Swiss law should data processing otherwise unlawfully infringe upon the privacy of a data subject.

4. Joint processing

We process personal data jointly within the SOLIT Group for the purpose of effective internal management of personal data and group systems. To this end, we transfer your data to affiliated group companies or process the data in systems operated jointly with our affiliated companies.

If you conclude a contract with us that includes the safekeeping of valuables or fractional ownership («co-ownership»), we will forward your data to a trust company for the management of the custody accounts or the safekeeping of the valuables.

Data processing in connection with the safekeeping of valuables takes place within the framework of joint responsibility pursuant to Section 3.

You can find information about the specific cookies we use, their providers and their purposes in our consent banner. There, you can give your consent to the respective services, revoke it, or adjust your settings at a later time.

Our consent banner: To document your choices regarding specific data processing activities and to fulfil our data protection obligations, we use a consent banner. When you visit our website, your cookie preferences are requested via a banner. We then set a cookie in which data regarding granted or revoked consents is stored. Data processing is carried out to fulfil our legal obligations under Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR.

Side note: use of Google services

We use various Google services on our website. In this context, Google Ireland Limited, Gordon House, Barrow Street, Dublin 4, Ireland («Google Ireland») generally acts as our contractual partner, while Google LLC, 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, CA 94043 in the U.S. («Google USA») may act as its processor (jointly «Google»). In connection with the Google services listed below in this Privacy Policy, persistent cookies are used, which are set by the service provider. We have configured the respective Google service so that the IP addresses of visitors to Google in Europe are truncated before being forwarded to the U.S., thereby preventing them from being traced. Where possible, we have configured privacy-friendly settings; for example, with Google Analytics, we ensure that «Data Sharing» and «Signals» are disabled (see below).

Although we can assume that the information we share with Google does not constitute personal data for Google, it is possible that Google may use this data for its own purposes to draw conclusions about the identity of visitors, create personal profiles, and link this data to these individuals' Google accounts. If you have registered with Google yourself, Google may also recognise you. The processing of your personal data by Google is then carried out under Google's responsibility in accordance with its own privacy policy. Google merely informs us about how our respective website is used (no data about you personally).

These statements apply to all Google services listed below in addition to the specific statements for each respective service.

o. Analysis/Marketing

aa. Google DoubleClick

This cookie is set by Google and stored under the name doubleclick.com. This cookie is used to track how often a user views a specific ad, which helps measure the success of a campaign and calculate the revenue generated by the campaign. These cookies can only be read by the domain for which they were set, so they do not track data when browsing other websites.

bb. Google Analytics

We use Google's tracking tool, Google Analytics, on our website. We use Google Analytics to evaluate your usage of the website, to compile reports on activities within this website, and to provide other services related to website usage, thereby improving user-friendliness.

When using Google Analytics, website visitors' interactions are primarily recorded and systematically analysed using cookies.

We use Google Analytics with the «anonymizeIP» extension. This truncates IP addresses within the member states of the EU or the EEA. If data is transmitted to Google's servers in the U.S., the full IP address is only transmitted in exceptional cases and is truncated there. A direct personal reference is therefore generally ruled out. In particular, it is no longer possible to associate the data with the website visitor's computer or device.

The following data is processed through the use of Google Analytics:

- Your internet service provider;
- 3 bytes of the IP address of the website visitor's system (truncated IP address);
- The website visited (including click path);
- Achievement of «website goals» (conversions, e.g., newsletter subscriptions and unsubscriptions, downloads, purchases);
- Your user behaviour (e.g., clicks, time spent on the site, frequency of visits, bounce rates);
- Your location by region;
- The website from which the user arrived on the webpage of our website (referrer);
- The subpages accessed from the website;
- Additional technical information about your browser and the devices you use (e.g., language settings, screen resolution).

According to Google, your IP address will under no circumstances be associated with other data held by Google.

cc. Google remarketing/retargeting

We use so-called tracking cookies from Google on our website. When you visit our site, permanent cookies store information about which products you have viewed on our site and through which third-party ads and pages users arrive at our website. When you subsequently visit a partner website, we can display personalised advertising for you based on the items you viewed on our site.

dd. Google Ads

We use Google Ads, an online advertising programme from Google, on our website. This involves so-called conversion tracking. If you click on an ad placed by Google, a cookie is set. This cookie expires after 30 days and is not used to personally identify users. If the user visits certain pages of this website and the cookie has not yet expired, Google and we can recognise that the user clicked on the ad and was redirected to this page. Furthermore, the service may collect the date and time of your visit, your IP address, referrer URL, browser type, browser language, cookie ID, user behaviour, ads clicked, and web requests.

The data collected using the conversion cookie is used to generate statistics for Ads customers who have opted for conversion tracking.

ee. Google Tag Manager

This service provides a tag management system. Using Google Tag Manager, tags can be integrated centrally via the user interface. Tags are small pieces of code that can track activities. Script code for other tools is integrated via Google Tag Manager. The Tag Manager can control when certain tags are activated. We use Google Tag Manager for lead generation, web analytics, ensuring a user-friendly experience on our website, tag management, and managing website tags and scripts on this website. For this purpose, we do not store any personal data and use information only at an aggregated level to trigger the tags.

Legal basis and withdrawal

The legal basis for data processing in connection with the aforementioned Google services is your prior consent pursuant to Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR.

You may withdraw your consent at any time with future effect by adjusting your preferences in our consent banner.

In this context, so-called conversion tracking is used. It cannot be ruled out that the information we collect as part of the service may be transferred to the U.S. Regarding data transfers from the EU to the U.S., there is an adequacy decision by the European Commission under the Data Privacy Framework (DPF). According to its own statements, Microsoft ensures an adequate level of data protection through the EU Standard Contractual Clauses.

If you click on an ad served by Microsoft, a cookie is set, and Microsoft compiles statistics based on personal data from online identifiers (including cookie IDs) as well as information about device and browser settings, so that Microsoft and we can determine that users have clicked on the ad and which page users were redirected to. This cookie is not used to personally identify users, but - as mentioned - to obtain statistics about our ad placement. However, if you sign in with a Microsoft account, Microsoft may recognise you or be able to draw conclusions about your identity and process this information for its own purposes. Microsoft is the independent controller for this processing and acts in accordance with its own privacy policy. Further details can be found here: https://privacy.microsoft.com/en-en/privacystatement.

The legal basis for data processing is your consent pursuant to Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR. By granting your consent, you agree to the use described here, including the transfer of your personal data to Microsoft.

You may revoke your consent at any time with future effect by disabling the cookie via your internet browser's user settings or by adjusting your preferences in our consent banner.

gg. eTracker

We use the eTracker tracking tool from eTracker GmbH, Erste Brunnenstrasse 1, 20459 Hamburg, Germany, on our website. We use eTracker to analyse your use of the website, to compile reports on activities within this website, and to improve user-friendliness.

When eTracker is used, website visitors' interactions are recorded and systematically analysed using cookies and a browser fingerprint created specifically for your device. Details about the cookies used can be found in our consent banner.

The data collected with eTracker is anonymised or pseudonymised as soon as possible. The IP address is truncated, and login and device identifiers are converted into a pseudonymous key. This generally precludes any direct personal reference. In particular, it is no longer possible to link the data to the website visitor's computer or device.

In connection with the use of eTracker, we process the following data:

- Information about the device, operating system, and browser used;
- Geolocation data up to the city level;
- The accessed URL with the corresponding page title and optional information about the page content;
- The website from which the individual page was accessed (referrer site, including attribution to search engines and social media sites, as well as the reading of campaign parameters);
- The subsequent pages accessed from the visited website within a single website during the session;
- The duration of the visit to the website;
- Other interactions (clicks) on the website, such as search terms entered, files downloaded, external links visited, videos viewed, registrations, inquiries, items ordered, etc.;
- Internet Protocol addresses, which are anonymised as early as possible by default;
- User IDs: randomly generated values (example: 108bf9a85547edb1108bf9a85547edb1) that may be stored in cookies with the user's consent;

There is no adequacy decision by the European Commission regarding data transfers from the EU to the U.S. under the Data Privacy Framework for LinkedIn. According to its own statements, LinkedIn continues to ensure an adequate level of data protection through the EU Standard Contractual Clauses approved by the European Commission.

ii. LinkedIn Analytics

We also use an analytics tool provided by the service provider LinkedIn. In this context, LinkedIn Ireland acts as our contractual partner, while LinkedIn USA may act as its data processor. As mentioned, LinkedIn states that it ensures an adequate level of data protection through the EU Standard Contractual Clauses approved by the European Commission.

We use LinkedIn's conversion tracking technology and retargeting feature on our website. This technology allows personalised ads to be displayed to visitors of this website on LinkedIn. Furthermore, it is possible to generate anonymous reports on the performance of the advertisements as well as information on user behaviour on the website. To this end, the LinkedIn InsightTag is integrated into this website, which establishes a connection to the LinkedIn server if you visit this website while logged into your LinkedIn account.

If you are logged into your LinkedIn account, it cannot be ruled out that LinkedIn may also be able to draw conclusions about your identity, whereby personal data from conversion tracking may be linked to your account. In these situations, LinkedIn acts as an independent data controller. q. External content

We use dynamic content («Content») from third parties to optimise the presentation and offerings of our website. When you visit the website, a request is automatically sent to the server of the respective content provider via an interface, during which certain log data (e.g., the user's IP address) is transmitted. The dynamic content is then transmitted to our website and displayed there.

We use external content in connection with the following features:

aa. Embedding of YouTube videos

We have embedded videos from the YouTube portal of YouTube LLC, 901 Cherry Ave. San Bruno, CA 94066, USA («YouTube») on our website. YouTube is a service provided by Google, and therefore Google Ireland is responsible for data processing on YouTube. The privacy policy described above for Google, as well as YouTube's own privacy policy, applies. When playing the videos, it cannot be ruled out that log data may be transmitted to YouTube's servers in the U.S.

The legal basis for processing is your prior consent pursuant to Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR.

bb. Social plug-ins

We may also include other third-party offerings on our website, particularly from social media providers (so-called plug-ins). These offerings are disabled by default. The plug-ins are integrated into our website via a button bearing the logo of the respective third-party provider; you activate them by clicking the corresponding button. As soon as you activate the plug-in by clicking it, your data is transmitted to the respective third-party provider, and they can determine that you are on our website. If you also have an account with the social media provider in question, they can associate information with you and thus track your use of online services; this can occur regardless of whether you are logged in to that service at the time or not.

We currently have the following plug-ins installed on our website:

- Facebook;
- YouTube;
- LinkedIn.

cc. Google Fonts

To make your visit to our website more appealing, we use external fonts from Google Fonts. These are loaded from Google servers when you visit the website. Google does not store any cookies in your browser during this process. However, according to our information, the IP address of the user's device is transmitted to Google and stored. This processing is based on your prior consent in accordance with Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR. If you do not give your consent via the consent banner, standard fonts will be displayed.

It cannot be ruled out that data may be transferred to Google in the U.S.

dd. Google Maps

We use the Google Maps service from Google on our website to provide you with an interactive map. When the map is displayed, data—including your IP address and your location—is transmitted to Google's servers and stored there.

Google Ireland is responsible for data processing for Google Maps. It cannot be ruled out that data may be transferred to Google USA, which may act as a processor on behalf of Google Ireland.

The legal basis for data processing is your consent pursuant to Art. 6, Clause 1 a) GDPR.

r. Google Translate

This service provides a translation tool that enables the automatic translation of parts of the website. No tracking takes place through this integration. However, IP addresses are transmitted, and we ensure that these are truncated.
